

Income tax increases gain strength in wake of gold crisis

Henry W. Fowler

William M. Martin

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new congressional drive to combine an income tax increase with a legislatively imposed cut in government spending is gathering strength with the mounting tempo of the international gold crisis.

For the first time, there is solid evidence that Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., who has kept President Johnson's income tax surcharge proposal bottled up in the House Ways and Means Committee, is one of the planners of a fiscal package including a tax increase.

Mills will say nothing publicly about any such plans. Interviewed by telephone at his home in Kensett, Ark., the chairman of the tax-writing committee said, "My position has not changed."

His position has been that spending must be cut well below the budget Johnson offered as a tight one, if a tax increase is to be considered. The new element, however, is a determination by Mills and other congressional leaders to cut off the dialogue with the executive branch and impose the cuts by legislation.

Mills is known to have conferred at length both in person in Washington and by telephone this weekend with Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee—the committee that determines spending. Mahon is on record for a tax increase coupled with a sharp cut in outlays.

Mills was told he has been pictured as an obstinate holdout to the arguments being pressed for a tax increase as a symbol of the United States' determination to preserve the dollar's international value—as well as to halt domestic inflation and help finance the Vietnam war.

Johnson, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, Federal Reserve Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr., and a host of businessmen and economists have been pressing this argument with mounting urgency.

Mills' comment: "I have got to do my own thinking and make up my own mind. Nobody else can tell me how to do it."

Asked whether he plans to call the committee together for another look at the 10 per cent income tax surcharge, he said, "This thing is always before us; it is constantly before us. The committee can get to it immediately when the circumstances demand it."

He is afraid, he said, that the $10 billion of new revenue produced by the surtax would simply offset inevitable increases in the cost of the war.

"We have got to begin to figure some way to get at this," he said. "Whenever we begin to wake up to this fact, then there will be restored confidence in the dollar at home and abroad."

"It is rough, it is tough, but to accomplish this the American people have to give up some of what they have now."

International bankers weigh panic

Area bank mortgages to feel 'gold rush'

By BERT WALTER
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — Money, specifically in the form of mortgages, will be harder to get from local banks due to the Federal Reserve Board's action in raising the discount rate of money from four to five per cent.

The Reserve Board unanimously increased the rate to combat possible domestic inflation on the United States dollar which is threatened in the European gold buying spree.

Local bankers explained that the mortgages will be hard to obtain since the banks will have to buy their money from the Federal Reserve Board at a five per cent interest rather than four and one half.

Pennsylvania law dictates that banks cannot charge more than six per cent interest on loans.

The local bankers explained that it would not be feasible for them to loan money at six per cent interest when they themselves will have to pay five per cent.

Limiting loans
One bank executive said that the local bank probably will not obtain money from the Reserve Board, thereby limiting the bank in the number of loans it can make. As a result, the bank will be more selective in its lending.

This, of course, the banker explained, is what the Reserve Board had intended when it raised the interest rate.

The legislatures in two southern states recently increased the ceilings on interest rates to eight per cent on mortgages. A bill is in Harrisburg now which would also James Joseph and Celeste Melvin from the Stroudsburg office of Loeb Rhodes & Co. watch the rapidly changing quotations from the New York Stock Exchange. raise the banks' interest ceiling from six per cent to eight per cent on mortgages.

An East Stroudsburg Building and Loan Assn. official said that the increased rate would affect their institution in the long run. The percentage increase would more directly affect them from deposits made by customers.

The bank basically earns money in two ways. One is by investing the money from depositors and the other is by obtaining money from the Federal Home Loan Bank. The interest from the Federal Home Loan Bank, however, is five and three-quarter per cent.

The official said the situation will be stable if the current money supply can adequately meet the demand. If it cannot meet the demand, the institution will become more selective.

Another bank official definitely said "there has to be" a tightening of the mortgage money, "because it's difficult to loan money at six per cent when you're (the bank) buying at five per cent."

Prevent devaluation
The Reserve Board's increase on the discount rate of the money will also raise the money which is coming into the country.

The Loeb Rhodes and Co. office in Stroudsburg was no different. Officials reported a steady gain of investors throughout the day.

Europeans struck with disbelief

LONDON (AP) — Londoners went sullenly to work on an unexpected bank holiday Friday, hardly able to raise a smile at the Cockney newspaper vendor shouting, "All the bad news that's fit to print."

Financial dealers crowded the sidewalks outside the deserted Stock Exchange and bullion market.

Cries of "resign" were directed at Prime Minister Harold Wilson in the House of Commons.

London's afternoon newspaper hit the streets with massive headlines:

"Mighty Battle for the Dollar," "Crisis Day—West Fights for Breathing Space," "Gravest Currency Crisis since 1931."

Frankfurt

FRANKFURT — Turmoil on world gold markets and the dollar crisis was the chief concern Friday of West German financial and government circles—but, for the present, interest stopped there.

The man on the street appeared to pay little attention to the situation. Few really understood what it was all about.

Most newspapers reported the record gold rush, but gave it little front-page space.

Paris

PARIS — In a frantic atmosphere buyers, sellers and speculators mobbed the Paris gold market Friday as prices for the precious metal were bid to new highs.

The crowd was so dense that squads of police were funneled in to help pass the small white order slips from trader to trader over the heads of the shouting, shoving mob.

The din was ear-splitting.

Rome

ROME — Despite the scare headlines and the ominous pronouncements from the world of high finance, Italians appeared to be taking the gold panic with a characteristic shrug of the shoulder.

The average Italian seemed to believe that somehow the problem would work out, that the United States would win, U.S. dollars would remain as good as gold and no harm would befall their country.

"No, no, I'm not worried," said 28-year-old Enrico Jacchini, a photo company employee in Rome. "I suppose it's serious but to me it's unthinkable that the dollar would collapse. I'm sure it will hold and I don't believe Italy will suffer."

It had been generally anticipated that Kennedy would enter the race for the nomination against Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and President Johnson, assuming the latter seeks re-election.

This expectation was heightened by Kennedy's choice of a setting for today's formal announcement—the Senate caucus room in Washington. It was there in 1960 that his late brother, John F. Kennedy, announced his candidacy for president.

Moreover, in Indianapolis, Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., quoted Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as telling him over the telephone that his brother would announce for the nomination Saturday.

Hartke told newsmen he did not know whether Robert Kennedy would enter Indiana's May 7 presidential preference primary, already a target of McCarthy.

McCarthy won 42 per cent of the primary vote in New Hampshire, against a 48 per cent write-in for President Johnson.

Fire causes heavy damage to Lone Pine Inn interior

HENRYVILLE — Fire late Friday night caused extensive damage here to the Lone Pine Inn.

Dense smoke rose from the upstairs windows of the two-story structure, owned by Samuel Seville of Phillipsburg, N.J. The building, which contained two bars and three bedrooms, in addition to vacant rooms, was unoccupied at the time of the fire.

A nearby neighbor said that the inn was vacant for quite some time and was undergoing extensive remodeling.

Seville, it was reported, operates the inn during the summer and lives in Phillipsburg during the off-season where he is a painter.

The blaze, reported shortly before 10 p.m. was confined to a bedroom in the rear of the first floor. Cause of the blaze is under investigation, Stroud Township Fire Chief Lester Rice said.

Extensive smoke seemed to hamper Stroud Township Volunteer Firemen from entering the building.

Install fan
Some firemen with Scott Airpaks on, went into the smoke-filled structure. In less than one-half hour, firemen installed a fan inside and blew out the smoke.

Firemen at first carried the charred and smoldering remains of a bed mattress outside the structure. Other charred bedroom furnishings and blankets soon were scattered outside the building.

The bedroom, reportedly occupied by one of Seville's daughters, was a mass of charred ruin.

One fireman was overheard to say that the plaster walls and ceiling in the bedroom seemed to prevent the fire from spreading into other parts of the house. An adjoining structure was not damaged.

The entire bedroom was blackened by the fire with everything being destroyed.

Firemen first gained entry into the bedroom through a rear window and later forced another entry through the door.

An adjacent bedroom suffered no apparent damage. There were two bars and two bedrooms on the first floor, one bedroom and two vacant rooms were on the second floor, which is a renovated attic.

U.S., South Vietnam launch largest offensive

SAIGON (AP) — In a drive to seize the initiative from the enemy, 50,000 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have launched the largest operation of the war in five provinces reaching from Saigon to the border of Cambodia.

Elements of six divisions and two special task forces have killed 233 enemy troops since the operation opened Monday, the U.S. Command said Friday. U.S. casualties were 11 killed and 94 wounded. South Vietnamese casualties were described as light.

The command said the prime objective is to erase the enemy threat that has hung over Saigon since the Viet Cong was driven from the capital in the enemy's Tet-lunar new year offensive.

Price hits $44.36 in Paris

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-price system for gold designed to discourage wild speculation emerged Friday as one possible course to be weighed at an emergency international bankers' meeting in Washington today.

Except for Paris where the price of gold shot to $44.36 an ounce, gold trading generally was suspended throughout the world until the seven nations which make up the London gold pool decide the next step in talks starting at 1 p.m. EST Saturday.

U.S. officials emphasized that no decisions have been made but the West German government is advocating a split gold price—with the rate for governments remaining at $35 an ounce while private speculators would pay more, according to demand.

"They're not coming to play poker," one said.

There were these other developments on a day marked with worldwide uncertainty in the wake of two weeks of wild speculative buying which threatens to disrupt the traditional way the world's nations do business with each other.

The White House said President Johnson probably will remain in the Washington area over the weekend and left open the possibility of a major public pronouncement.

The United Kingdom extended a Friday bank holiday into Saturday. The London gold market normally is closed on Saturday.

The new 5 per cent discount rate approved Friday by the Federal Reserve Board went into effect at nine district banks. The Philadelphia bank goes to 5 per cent on Monday and New York is expected to follow suit. The old rate was 4.5 per cent.

The New York Stock Exchange opened for business, pulled out of an early decline and posted a moderate gain in active trading.

Swiss banks opened but gold trading was halted.

Canadian banks suspended gold trading until conditions are clarified.

The French, however, refused to go along with the gold suspension and opened the Paris market as President Charles de Gaulle called his financial experts to a special meeting.

The gold price in Paris was permitted to find its own level and by the close of business had dropped from its high point to about $42.

Allentown store sold

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Hess Department Store was sold Friday to Philip L. Berman, Allentown businessman, said Max Hess, store owner and president.

Hess said ownership would be transferred shortly but gave no other details of the sale.

Berman is president of D. F. Blast Inc., an industrial steel trucking firm, and is a director of the First National Bank of Allentown.

Hess' father and uncle founded the store 71 years ago. Hess said he has agreed to become honorary board chairman of the store and serve as a consultant.

Hints at candidacy

Kennedy to enter race today

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., all but made it official Friday that he has decided to seek the Democratic presidential nomination. He withheld a formal announcement until today, however.

Kennedy told a group of Long Island women at a meeting in King's Point: "I am going to make an announcement tomorrow. You can help me in my efforts which I am going to undertake."

It had been generally anticipated that Kennedy would enter the race for the nomination against Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and President Johnson, assuming the latter seeks re-election.

This expectation was heightened by Kennedy's choice of a setting for today's formal announcement—the Senate caucus room in Washington. It was there in 1960 that his late brother, John F. Kennedy, announced his candidacy for president.

Moreover, in Indianapolis, Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., quoted Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., as telling him over the telephone that his brother would announce for the nomination Saturday.

Hartke told newsmen he did not know whether Robert Kennedy would enter Indiana's May 7 presidential preference primary, already a target of McCarthy.

McCarthy won 42 per cent of the primary vote in New Hampshire, against a 48 per cent write-in for President Johnson.

Need for modern St. Patricks

STROUDSBURG — One thing that we need today is more Saint Patricks.

This great Christian was so great in the Faith, and so devoted to spreading the Good News of the Gospel that he made himself as nothing and feared nothing, except failing his God.

He was born in Scotland, educated in Italy and spent most of his life in the savage mission field of Ireland, Scotland, and the inner and outer Hebrides.

The courage that this great missionary showed is almost unbelievable. Most of the Celtic peoples of that time were Druids, pagans with fearful devil rites, full of bloody sacrifices, and wanton, lustful abandon.

This Saint Patrick dove into the midst of sin-lust rites and proclaimed in unhesitating manner, that they were wrong in their ideas of what pleases God. He then taught the pagans that God loved them and that all their sacrifices were needless, as He (God) had provided the only sacrifice ever needed, His Son, Christ.

Family of God

Through this missionary's efforts, The Holy Spirit was able to work in the hearts of the Celtic peoples, convince them of their errors, and lead them into the family of God. We see then, that the first step in seeking God's love is to first recognize our need for Him.

The unrepentant will never seek and plead with God for forgiveness as he is unaware of his predicament.

No missionary, no preacher, no human person can give salvation. This is the work of The Holy Spirit. We can "plow the field" so to speak, but we can only provide the introduction needed so that God may work in human hearts. We Christians should be alarm clocks for our fellow man, to awaken in them the need for repentance and change of life.

That people are seeking something in their lives, more than just eating and sleeping is evident. They will turn to all kinds of sects and ideas to seek fulfillment and meaning to life. The oriental Guru — or meditation idea — is a prime example. These modern day Druids are just as out of step with God's will as were their ancestors during the era of Saint Patrick.

Courage and conviction

What we need today is more Christians with the courage and convictions of Saint Patrick. Willing to speak out boldly against modern pagan rituals and lead the seekers into the paths that The Lord has outlined for us to walk.

The recent failure of the church to meet the needs of their people is due to the producing of Christians too embarrassed to tell others of what they believe, and why they believe. Perhaps they really do not know themselves!

It is every Christian's duty to be a witness unto others. To be able to speak a word, in season, to inspire and encourage others. Yes, and to be a missionary wherever he may be, at work, on the street, or at play. One must never miss the opportunity to introduce someone to Christ.

Let there be more Saint Patricks in this day and age of spreading unbelief. Let it be you and me.

You sense, as you enter its restful confines, that no other institution ever evolved by man, through Providence, holds so great a force for good.

Although the church is a human institution, insofar as membership and organization are concerned, and therefore not perfect, it is a very good place to frequent. Men do not go there to fight, to rob or to harm. Here you will be inspired, comforted and imbued with that most commendable of all virtues: Charity for all; malice toward none.

Court honors
tipstaff

By Norman B. Lehde

During a lull in the court proceedings last week, the President Judge, Arlington Williams, called Tipstaff Thomas Thompson to the bench. The latter, expecting to be asked to perform another duty for the court, was surprised to find that he was the center of attraction.

It was "Tommy's" last day as a court attendant and Judge Williams did not let it go unnoticed. He complimented Thompson on the faithful service he had performed; service which dated well back in the term of Judge Williams' predecessor, Judge Fred W. Davis.

Tommy has also served as a Constable in Milford Borough for many years. His courage, tenacity and ability in serving warrants has won him the sobriquet of "Bird dog" from the admiring officials and attorneys who knew they could always count on Tommy to do the job required of him.

Those who have reason to attend the Pike County Court regularly will miss his friendly greeting which had become a fixture of the court room.

It is expected that most roads will lead to Milford today when the inaugural meeting of the Tocks Island Citizens Assn. will be held at the Tom Quick Inn.

Since both Col. William W. Watkin of the United States Army Engineers and Peter De Gelleke of the National Park Service, are scheduled to address the audience, it may well be that the citizens group will receive some special ground-floor information on the current status of the Tocks Island project.

Directors, representing all the counties in the area embraced by the Tocks Island region, are scheduled to be elected during the evening. These directors will, in turn, elect officers to head the organization during its first year of operation.

The anniversary of the Blizzard of 1888 on Tuesday produced a sleet storm and a return to winter in the Milford area. The highway department's plowing equipment was in action for the first time since the end of January.

amendments

STROUDSBURG — Rev. John N. Roberts endorsed the revisions made by the state Constitutional Convention and explained many of the proposed changes to the Stroudsburg Kiwanis Club Wednesday.

In addition to talking to the club members at the Penn Stroud Hotel, Roberts distributed copies of a synopsis of the changes that will come to a vote at the primary election April 23.

Roberts, pastor of the Mountainhome Methodist Church, was a convention delegate from the 20th Senatorial District. He was elected as a Democrat but emphasized that the convention retained a non-political character.

A liberal "What division there was," he said, "was along philosophical lines." Roberts labeled himself a liberal and admitted he would have liked to see more sweeping changes than those approved.

"However, I am strongly in favor of the proposals to be put before us on April 23," he said.

"In fact, several of us who were in the minority on many of the convention votes are preparing a letter in which we point out that though we would have liked to see greater change, all the proposals are good. We want to see them accepted."

However, with the days having lengthened to the point where the light exceeds the dark and official spring due to arrive next week, storms at this time of year just don't have the impact they would carry a month or two earlier. Sub-zero temperatures are no longer likely and when the sun now appears, thawing is assured.

Another sign of spring was the announcement of an opening date for the 1968 season by the Milford Midget Baseball League. The league race will get under way with the usual doubleheader on Sunday, May 19. Tryouts for berths on the rosters of the four Midget League teams will be held on Sunday afternoon, April 21.

The following Sunday, April 28, will serve as a rain date. Application forms for the young hopefuls to sign will be available in the area's schools in early April.

In the meantime, league officials and workers are struggling with fund raising for the current season. They have initiated a campaign for open donations which they are hopeful may serve as a medium of acquiring the money needed for league operations (about $1,000 a season) in the future without the added burden of conducting a dance or other money making affair. They are also carrying on a promotional campaign for this year's dance to be held at the Laurel Villa Casino on Saturday, April 27.

Pike County's Petit Jury is scheduled to be called into service at the court house on Monday.

The Milford Lions Club is planning a big time at Delaware Valley High School on Saturday, March 23. The main event will be a basketball game between the club members and the high school faculty. There will also be a preliminary intramural game, an exhibition by Mrs. Ann Bernathy's Dancing Class and music by the high school band.

The receipts of the program will be used for the club's scholarship fund.

Cancer Crusade kickoff in Pike County is scheduled for Thursday, March 21, at the Presbyterian Church at 8 p.m. session which opened with devotions by Nancy Macialek and Sandra Swarts, both of Daleville.

The communion rally will be preceded by a fellowship time at 7:30 p.m. The program will include a film on communion as well as the actual service. In charge are Revs. Noble, Clark and Flude, of Gouldsboro, Lakeville and South Sterling Charge, respectively.

A talent evening will be held on April 28 at Hamlin Church, with each of the churches or combined charges presenting a program. From the report given at the council session, there will be a varied program including skits, musical selections, vocal groups and a play.

Complete plans are to be brought to the April 8 council meeting which will be held at the home of Peggy Bancroft, South Sterling, at 7:30 p.m.

On March 17, the District Choir practice is at Hamlin from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. Refreshments will be provided.

Attending the session were Delia Field, Elaine Macdonough, Lura Chapman, and Rev. Merle Correll, Hamlin-Lake Ariel; John Smith, Margaret Ziegler, Sterling; Sharon Smith, Kathy Marshall, Gouldsboro; Stanley Wood, Marguerite Hollister, Hollisterville; Roberta Singleton, Linda Emick, Karen Winkler and Nancy Jones, Moscow; Joseph Macialek, Sandy Swarts, Nancy Macialek, Ginger Hughes, Daleville; Karen Williams, Walter Rowen, Lakeville-Bidwell Hill; Ruthann Schoenagel, Susan Newcomer; David Dickinson, Gary Shupe, Peggy Bancroft, South Sterling Charge.

Meeting listed

NEWFOUNDLAND — A directors' meeting for the Greene-Draher-Sterling Community Fair Assn. has been set for 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, March 27, at the American Legion Hall to begin plans for the 51st annual GDS Fair.

1970 set
as date
for school

MILFORD — The chairman of the building needs committee, director Leonard Mattar, projected September 1970 as the opening date for the new Delaware Valley High School at the regular board meeting on Thursday night.

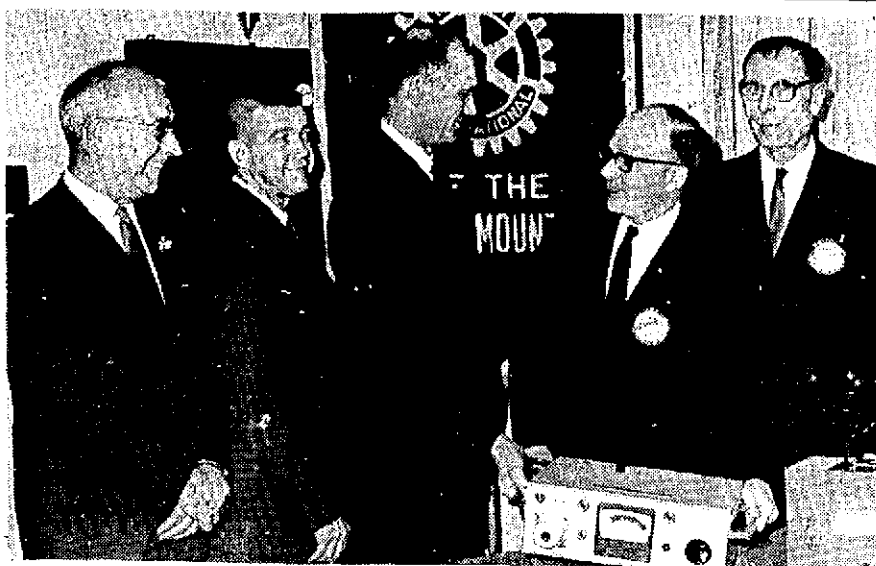

During the meeting, Mattar was selected to represent the board at a meeting in Harrisburg next Wednesday. He will be accompanied on the trip by superintendent of schools, Leland Cramer. In the state capitol they will meet with the architect and the department of public instruction. Mattar stated he was hopeful that preliminary plans for the new building will be approved at that time.

With the opening date of the new building now advanced from a previously projected date of September 1969, the directors agreed during a discussion on current conditions of the elementary schools that it may be imperative to rent additional classroom space.

Teachers resign

The resignation of two teachers, Mrs. Mae Ball and Mrs. Kathryn Lehn, both of whom will retire at the end of the current term were accepted with regret. Appreciation was expressed for the long service of both women who teach in the Matamoras Elementary school.

Cramer announced that the elementary school supervisor, Mrs. Ellen Hudson, was preparing a remedial reading program for next summer. The district, with 104 pupils classified as "economically deprived", is entitled to $17,774 under the ESCA titlement program, Cramer explained, noting that the district program must be approved by June 30 for current allocations of funds.

Barrett to conduct meeting on Mid-Atlantic Music plan

CANADENSIS — Under the sponsorship of the Barrett Community Club, the Barrett Junior Woman's Club and the Barrett Lions Club, all citizens of Barrett Township, as well as neighboring communities, are invited to an informative meeting at the Barrett Elementary Center on Monday, at 8 p.m.

William Schenamin, president of the Mid-Atlantic Music and Arts Center, will discuss the organization's plans and aims for their forthcoming operation at Onawa Lodge in Mountainhome.

Also attending the meeting will be Frank Dressler, one of the members of the Committee supporting the location of the Mid-Atlantic Music Camp in the Poconos. Dressler is executive director of the Tocks Island Regional Council.

Co-Chairmen of the fund raising committee, Edward Bellhorn of Skytop, and Mrs. E. Holt Wyckoff, Jr. of Stroudsburg, will attend. A question and answer period is scheduled following the presentation of plans by Mr. Schenamin and Mr. Dressler.

The Mid Atlantic Music and

Arts Center is a non-profit organization and was organized for the purpose of encouraging and developing the talents of students in the performing arts. Its goal is to develop a center for the performing arts, where talented students may perform along with master performers and teachers.

The projection for the next five to ten years is that the Center will reach an enrollment of between 500 to 1,500 students. These figures are based on the increasing interest among young people in the performing arts.

Catholics
plan new drive phase

CRESO — Chaitmen, captains and workers from seven Catholic parishes met this week here in Pocono Central Catholic School to organize for the General Phase of Project Expansion.

The Memorial phase will conclude this Sunday and the General phase will start and continue until Easter Sunday, said Msgr. Joseph G. Quinn, of St. Ann's Parish in Tobyhanna, who is regional chairman.

Three of the parishes have already reached 100 percent of their goal: St. Anne's Parish, Tobyhanna, $34,000; St. Ulalia Parish, Elmhurst and St. Catherine's, in Moscow.

During the organization session of the general phase, additional volunteers were briefed on the project expansion program.

Supporting parishes include: St. Matthew's, East Stroudsburg; St. Mary of the Mount, Mt. Pocono; St. Bernadette, Canadensis, and St. Thomas More, Lake Ariel.

Bloodmobile
at college
on Monday

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Red Cross bloodmobile will visit East Stroudsburg State College campus on Monday.

Dr. George Deckershausen, faculty member in charge of the drive, invites the public to join students and faculty in "setting a new blood donor record" for the college.

"Last March," he said, "we donated 297 pints. This year we hope to do even better."

He pointed out that a certain amount of the blood collected by the Red Cross is processed for shipment to hospitals in Vietnam.

"With our injury rate going up all the time among U.S. servicemen, the pint you give may well save someone's life," he added.

The bloodmobile will be stationed in the physical therapy suite of Koehler Field House from 10:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m.

Landfill issue major controversy

Construction of a landfill on the John Brislin property, located in both Stroud and Hamilton townships, is being stroked back and forth like a tennis ball on a windy day.

Virtually everyone agrees that Monroe County is in need of such a construction, but nobody wants it in their vicinity — which is only a natural trend of thought.

However, it is apparent that Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Stroud Township and Hamilton are in need of a landfill site.

East Stroudsburg and Stroud Township have approved the proposed landfill, while Stroudsburg and Hamilton Township have displayed opposition.

From where we sit, it appears as if the location of the landfill may be a lesser problem than the operation of the disposal location. Guaranteed operation of the landfill would ease a lot of minds. The risk of a poor operation has caused grave doubts in the minds of many area residents.

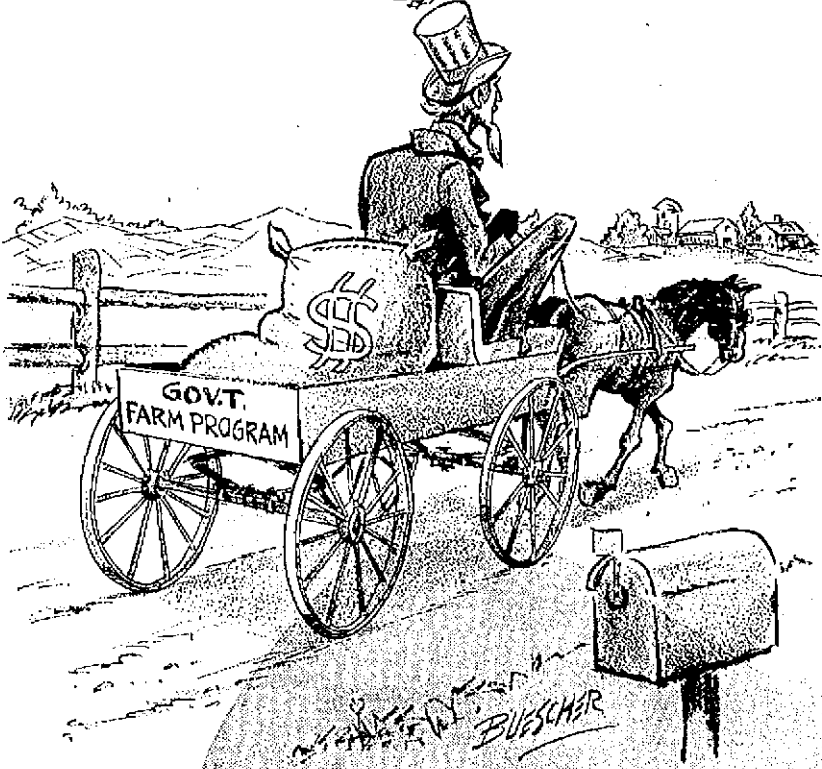

The landfill controversy is another outgrowth of Monroe County's virtual refusal to adopt planning and zoning codes. Suddenly the area finds itself without the proper property or location to construct a landfill to the satisfaction of everyone.

Due to the lack of proper planning over the years, the Pocono Mountains, long known for their spaciousness, suddenly finds themselves with little space for the requirements of expansion.

The construction of a landfill should be approved only after careful study, more careful planning and an exhaustive search for the proper location.

The future development of the Pocono Mountains depends on planning and zoning.

See America first, last

The first brief smile of Spring adorns the land and the whole nation starts to discuss summer vacations. Some will go to the same old lake; others will trudge the mountains or walk barefooted along damp beaches. A few will sleep at home through the entire two weeks.

This is the year that industry and government ask you to take a look at America. It's worth a look, not only because it is a place of stunning beauty, but it will also keep a couple of billions of dollars from flowing into foreign hands, to be redeemed for gold at Fort Knox.

If I had three weeks to spare, I'd buy tourist vacation tickets on the airlines and see the whole country. Three weeks? This proves that more than the air is balm. Permit me to dream on. I'd start in New York.

NEW YORK is a great departure point. If you enjoy legitimate theatre, in addition to Grant's Tomb and the Statue of Liberty, it may be worth a two-day stay. It's loaded with hot canyons and cold eyes.

DETROIT is a favorite short stop, because of Dearborn, which has restored the original courtroom in which Abraham Lincoln practiced the Wright Brothers laboratory, with their books and drawings of planes. Henry Ford's first efforts at making a horseless carriage; Thomas Edison's first generator and electric light bulb. Besides, one can ride through the Windsor Tunnel and visit Canada.

DENVER: This mile-high city sits in the shadow of the lofty Rockies. An hour's drive from an original mining town, complete with hitchhiking posts, dance hall, opera house, the face on the barroom floor. Denver has some swinging joints for dinner.

LAS VEGAS: A billiard table desert with a diamond-studded one in the middle. Beautiful girls, sophisticated roulette wheels — sleep all day, play all night. See gigantic Hoover Dam. Only the losers jump.

SEATTLE: The northwestern edge of the United States. Fine restaurants, good golf courses, the whole Cascade Range is in view. There is the Columbia River, Vancouver to the north and Olympic National Park on the Pacific Ocean.

SAN FRANCISCO: The personality kid of municipalities. Steep hills, antique trolleys, Golden Gate and seafood restaurants so good they are almost sinful. See Yosemite National Park, by all means.

LOS ANGELES: Rent a car and drive down the coast from San Francisco. It's worth it. The Monterey Peninsula is breathtaking in its beauty. In Los Angeles, see Beverly Hills and the homes of the movie stars. Go to the motion picture studios and watch a movie being made. See Disneyland. Dine in a Mexican area.

SAN ANTONIO: A great city. Sail on a river of flowers and lights at night. Visit the Alamo. Enjoy the music of Spanish guitars and the welcome hand all San Antonians extend to strangers.

NEW ORLEANS: Not so quaint these days, but the French influence is still alive in one quarter of the city. Wonderful creole dining; good Dixieland combinations in many of the taverns. Stand on a levee of the Mississippi and hum Old Man River.

MIAMI: Not hot in the summer, as you might think. Visit the beach, bathe in clear jade seas. Visit the Aquarium, the Florida Keys. Great fishing, dog tracks, golf courses. Probably the most naturally beautiful setting in the nation.

HOME: You will probably find it just where you left it. The sweetest part of any homecoming is the joy of your own bed. It soothes every contour of your weary frame. You are destined for a few surprises, such as a couple of dozen newspapers at the door; a dining room table good for writing your name in dust; something which somebody forgot to turn off.

There are other places I would visit — if I had the time and the checkbook. Yellowstone National Park is one; the Black Hills of Dakota is another. A boat trip on the Mississippi; the rocky area of Maine between Portland and Boothbay Harbor; Quebec, which isn't American but I'm beginning to think it isn't Canadian either. How about the ten thousand lakes of Minnesota; the enchanting southern atmosphere of Memphis; the whole NASA complex at Houston; the austere, marble beauty of Washington, D. C.; King Street in Charleston? Milwaukee all the time.

This summer, dream big. It will give you something to talk about all next winter.

Ideas for saving money

WASHINGTON — With the government threatening to reduce financial aid to schools in one area of Alaska, a school official there faced with a $15,000 cut wrote to Sen. Ernest Gruening (D., Alaska). His letter, in part, follows:

"As you know, textbooks and supplies have been paid for, therefore there is no chance to save money there. Perhaps we could turn off the heat and lights, but it is very cold and we are still on the short, dark days. Maybe we could let the janitor go, but this would be more costly in the long run, with equipment breaking down, etc. So, we come to the teachers. We have 18 teachers for 300 students. To save $15,000 this year, I would have to reduce the staff by four teachers."

Meanwhile, the government continues to spend money on things such as studies of Australian crickets, Mexican flies and obscure dialects in Iran.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D., Mass.) has suggested a draft lottery, in which men would be chosen alphabetically by the initials of their last names. If his idea is adopted, names such as Zapata and Zimmerman ought to become pretty popular; in fact, a lot of men named Adams and Ames may even consider changing theirs.

Folks boarding the New York — Washington air shuttle are allowed to pay for their tickets on board the plane. But, before boarding, they are required to fill out a boarding pass — name and address — and hand it to the gate attendant as they walk out to the aircraft. However, Sen. Jacob Javits (R., N. Y.) apparently is much too important a man to be bothered with such pedestrian trifles.

I happened to be walking behind him as he went through the gate for the plane the other night and he just marched past the attendant and said, "Javits — New York City!" The attendant was obliged to fill out Javits' boarding pass for him and as I went by, I heard him say to another attendant, "Javits! Big deal!"

Britain's Prime Minister, Harold Wilson, has been very liberal with his advice on how we might end the war in Vietnam. But he fails to mention that one way we might end it is to get British ships to stop delivering war supplies to Hanoi. In 1967, of the 78 free world ships that arrived in North Vietnam, 67 flew the British flag. (Thanks a bunch, Harold.)

Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R., Utah) has coined a phrase to describe the spenders of the Great Society; he refers to them as "the debt-set."

How to lose votes in one easy lesson: Despite our problems with France and despite the fact that New York State, a great wine-producing area, is struggling to convert Americans to native wines, New York's Gov. Nelson Rockefeller served French wine at a recent Executive Mansion party.

Oh, well, it may still be a good year for wine, but it looks like a bad year for Rockefeller, anyway.

The Allen-Scott Report

King's marches tied to others

WASHINGTON — Dr. Martin Luther King's decision to delay his "poor people's" invasion of Washington until April 22 is linked closely to the demonstration plans of radical student and anti-war groups.

Congressional investigators, probing the growing protest movement in the country, report that King is timing his militant campaign of civil disobedience here to coincide with the "Ten Days of Resistance" being planned by the Communist-infiltrated Students for a Democratic Society.

The SDS, which has established close liaison with King's Washington staff, plans to launch its 1968 anti-Vietnam protests in the national capital and other major cities during the April 21-30 period.

Series of articles

A "battle plan" being circulated by SDS leaders to its key agitators states that the "Ten Days of Resistance" in April will be used to surface a whole series of new militant protest activities and form alliances with other groups including Dr. King's protesters.

As outlined in this document, the SDS objective is identical with King's — the formation of a broad-based coalition with other protest groups for the launching of a nation-wide campaign of "political resistance" this year.

"In the past year the movement has come from dissent to resistance," states the SDS memorandum. "What we now need is a new dimension in the movement which will enable us to confront the power structure in a political way with the assistance of other militant protest groups."

Other SDS documents point out that the kinds of "political resistance" being advocated by this militant group cover a wide range of illegal activities designed to disrupt the functions of all forms of government, universities, and public services.

Forming united front

In a series of organizational meetings around the country, King has advocated the same type of tactics, stating that "to dislocate the functioning of a city without destroying it can be more effective than a riot, because it can be longer lasting and more costly to society."

Evidence gathered by the Senate Permanent Investigating Subcommittee, which is planning a hearing later this month on King, indicates that two of the compelling reasons for the link up of protest groups now are money and manpower problems.

One informant told the Senate probes, "King has turned to recruiting trained agitators from black power, student, and anti-war groups in order to fill out his ranks, save money, and time. All his hard-core protesters will be professionals, drawn from other militant groups."

The subcommittee, headed by Senator John McClellan, D.-Ark., has gathered information showing that King has also established an alliance with SANE, the Washington-New York-based anti-war, anti-draft organization. This group has agreed to provide money, housing and communications for King's "poor people's" army.

Big issue

Still unresolved is the question of whether the Johnson Administration plans to accommodate King during his "second coming."

He has asked Interior Secretary Stewart Udall for permission to set up tents in public parks in Washington, including the Mall, which extends from near the west front of the Capitol to the Washington Monument.

Congressional leaders led by Speaker John McCormack, D.-Mass., are vigorously urging President Johnson personally to order Secretary Udall to bar King from using any government land or facilities.

They appealed directly to the President because of a decision the Interior Secretary made in 1966. Without consulting congressional leaders, Udall granted a permit for several thousand anti-war protesters to use the mall in their march on Congress.

Before that demonstration was broken up, more than 300 of the protesters were arrested as they tried to battle their way onto the Capitol grounds.

What disturbed the Senate-House leaders was that Secretary Udall gave his permission for the march despite the fact that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had circulated advance information the protesters planned to try to take over the House of Representatives and hold a mock session in its chamber.

After the incident the legislators summoned Udall to an unpublished meeting at the Capitol and gave him a blistering lecture. He was warned that if he ever permitted use of the mall for another march on Congress it would result in a full-scale congressional investigation.

Firm stand

In making preparations for King's second coming, Speaker McCormack has given orders to James Powell, chief of U. S. Capitol Police to "use whatever force is necessary to block all demonstrations on the Capitol grounds."

Pledging his full backing, McCormack told Powell:

"In your enforcement of the law, I will give you complete backing. The attorney general is being notified that Congress expects him to prosecute to the full extent of the law all persons you arrest. As long as I am speaker, no group is going to be permitted to disrupt the functions of Congress."

Already Powell has taken several steps to give his small force more mobility. An Army bus has been obtained so reinforcements can be shifted from one area of the Capitol grounds to another as needed.

On King's arrival a reinforced Marine battalion will be stationed at the outskirts of Washington and kept on alert for use in extreme emergencies.

House leaders are also looking into the organization of high school students in the Washington area by King's staff. Several students have been contacted to their public school teachers that organizers for King have approached them to take part in demonstrations against Congress this summer.

Answers to questions

Is there any new treatment for frostbite of the fingers and toes?

It is difficult to understand why there are so many strange ideas about how to treat frostbite. We have long departed from the dangerous practice of rubbing fingers and toes with snow. There are many other injurious and hazardous folktales which should be discarded. Probably the best treatment for frostbite is to avoid it. Proper clothing, gloves and boots and sensible avoidance of overexposure to cold, especially moist cold, can prevent frostbite and its complications.

People with circulatory disturbances, especially the elderly, must protect themselves from overexposure.

Severe cold actually injures the tissues and muscles of the hands, the feet, the ears and the tip of the noses by freezing. The blood vessels become smaller and the blood supply is inadequate. The result is the formation of blisters and in complicated cases gangrene. First aid treatment is devoted to reestablishing the blood circulation. The frozen part should be warmed gradually and not rubbed too vigorously.

Harsh antiseptics should not be applied to the sensitive skin. Warm liquids and alcohol in moderation are good. Drugs should be taken only with the advice of a doctor.

Tobacco should be avoided because it produces spasm of the small blood vessel and further diminishes the blood supply. Cover the frostbitten toes or fingers with sterile gauze and keep the skin lubricated with a non-medical oil.

All treatment should be under the supervision of a doctor. Until he arrives do too little rather than too much.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH — This age of wonder drugs has not eradicated the age of quackery. Consult your doctor before undertaking any "special cures."

Your individual medical problems should be handled by your own doctor. He knows you best.

Lenten Guideposts

By Annamas Cheney
Missionary, Davao City,
Philippines

"Mama! Ma-maaa!" My four-year-old Sandra screamed into the house.

As I ran to her, I saw blood streaming down her face.

"Baby, what is it?" She was crying too hard to answer, but in a moment her five-year-old sister Pamela joined us and explained.

"Carlos hit Sandy with a rock."

"What's the matter?" My husband, Bill, entered the room.

"Car-Carlos hit me with a rock," Sandy sobbed.

I handed Sandra over to her father and started outside.

"Where are you going?" Bill asked.

"I'm going to put that kid into orbit and do everyone a favor!"

Quiet voice

Bill's quiet voice stopped me.

"Did we come over here to punish naughty little boys, or tell them about Jesus so they won't act that way?" I met his serious eyes as he added.

"Leave the boy to me, honey. I think I know a better way."

I took Sandra upstairs to repair the damage to her face, muttering, "That Carlos! He has caused nothing but trouble since we came."

It was true. We had been missionaries in the Philippines two years. During that time Carlos, the 10-year-old terror of the neighborhood, had kept all the children in tears. He kicked, hit, pushed, threw rocks, ground faces in the dirt.

As missionaries, we tried to be calm about the matter; but it was hard for me to "turn the other cheek" when my girls were involved. My husband had remarked, "If that boy isn't controlled, he'll wind up in jail. Something inside is driving him to destruction."

A big kite

After giving Sandra a bath, a clean dress and candy, we came down-stairs. I stared at the dining room table. Bill and Pamela were surrounded by bundles of bamboo sticks, paper, paste and string.

"What on earth...?" I exclaimed.

Bill grinned. "Operation Carlos."

"We're making a big, big kite, Mommie," Pam squealed.

Sandra joined the fun, and a short time later Bill and the girls went outside to see if it would fly.

In seconds they were surrounded by children. Carlos stood watching from his yard, but soon ventured forth. The word spread, "That crazy Americano is flying a kite."

Wouldn't fly

It was ludicrous — my 6-foot-three husband running down the road, the kite trailing behind. It wouldn't fly! I began to pray.

He just couldn't lose face when he had such a serious purpose in mind.

"Needs more tail," I advised.

"It's too big," one boy scoffed, fingering his own handkerchief-size kite — the usual size for the area. Bill's kite was as big as two newspapers taped together.

We added more tail; I tossed the kite and held my breath.

Up — up — it went, but the power lines were in the way.

"Into the car, kids," Bill ordered. "Come on, Carlos, you too," he added casually.

We drove to a vacant area of land where there were no power lines and the wind was perfect.

I held the kite, Bill ran, and I prayed. The kite went higher every second. Finally the string was gone, the kite — now a mere speck in the tropical sky — was pulling persistently, clamoring for freedom. The children all begged to hold it, as some of the boys began sending paper "messages" up the long string.

Quick tears came into my eyes as Bill handed the coveted string to Carlos with a gentle smile. The boy stared at him in disbelief, then grabbed it.

Everyone had a turn until it grew too dark to see. Carlos had the honor of pulling in the kite. I saw him smile, and marveled at how it transformed his face.

That evening I watched our children playing on the road. Carlos was there, but there were no tears. Everyone was playing happily and discussing the "big — big kite flown by the big — big Americano."

More than a year has passed since that eventful day, and the children are flying kites again. It's been wonderful.

The neighborhood is filled with happy, laughing children — and Carlos is one of them. I haven't heard one complaint about him since. Several times he has come and asked for the "big — big kite" and received it with a smile.

Pamela and Sandra often go to his house to play. Their only comment is "CARLOS IS GOOD NOW. MOMMIE."

The other day I stood watching the kites and children, thinking of my mention to "put that kid into orbit." Instead my husband, in his wisdom, had put the kite into the heavens and won a child — perhaps rescued him.

Bill came to my side, putting his arm around me. I said, "I think I know a better way — Love. How right you were. Why didn't I think of that?"

Bill grinned at me. "You never were a naughty boy — I was."

Green Thumb

Black walnut trees good investment for future

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
Record Garden Correspondent

BLACK WALNUT FOR LUMBER: Home owners with some spare land would do well to plant black walnut trees for nuts and profit. Mature walnut trees are now selling for $50 to $1,000 each. Even if you can't be around to harvest the timber, it's good business to plant for another generation.

Black walnut can be grown on practically any land that's loose and well drained. Extreme sand and swamp are not too desirable, nor dense woods.

Walnut will grow well in pine stands. A cheap way to get a lot of trees started is by planting stratified seed nuts (nuts which have been kept cold in fall and winter). You can also plant seedlings. Started nuts cost around $35 a 1,000, roughly speaking, and they can be planted late in the spring or early summer when the ground has warmed up. Plant two inches deep.

Grass and weed competition the first two years may be a problem, but a mulch around each tree will help keep these down. If you have a lot of nut trees planted, Simazine granules do a good job killing weeds.

GROW SOME LETTUCE: Ever try growing Iceberg lettuce in the home garden? You can.

To get good head lettuce early in the summer, it's a good idea to sow the seed in a hotbed now and transplant seedlings to the garden in April or May. Be sure to harden the plants off before transplanting to the open ground.

There's no trick in growing leaf lettuce. Sow any time from early spring until July, making several plantings for a continuous supply. In other words, do not plant it all at once. Plant seed in rows 18 inches apart, covering lightly (about 1/4-inch) and then thin plants to about six inches apart. Head lettuce plants should be set a foot apart. Do not sow lettuce seed too thick.

PLANT A WEIGELA BUSH: If you'd like a good landscape shrub, try a Weigela (pronounced "Y-gee-luh"). Eva Ratke is a pink-red flowering type with trumpet-shaped flowers, with a main show in June, and a scattering of flowers the rest of the season. There's also a variegated Weigela with pale pink, trumpet-shaped blossoms.

Foliage is deep green and edged with a lace of creamy white. Shrub blooms in June and reaches a height of five feet. The various Weigelas need little if any pruning. Just cut out any dead wood, and if necessary snip off a little from the ends to keep them in form. Too much trimming ruins their natural beauty.

SALVIA — A DAZZLING ANNUAL: If you're planning to use salvia ("firecracker plant") keep in mind that some are later in blooming. So select the ones that will bloom in your area.

INDOOR CITRUS PLANTS: Many home gardeners have good luck growing orange, lemon, lime, and grapefruit plants indoors, but they are puzzled when the flower buds drop. What causes this? Hot dry air is one cause, although cross-pollination, or a lack of it, is the main reason. Most citrus flowers need pollination indoors.

You can help this along by taking your cat's tail (don't cut it off) and tickling each bloom, spreading one flower to another. If you don't have a cat, use the tip of your finger or a camel's hair brush.

If you still get dropping of buds and small fruits, then blame the trouble on a lack of light, improper watering (too much or too little) or high room temperature. Plants started from seed may bear sour fruits, but remember that citrus are large outdoor types, taking years to bear, so don't be disappointed if yours don't fruit. Grafted types bear and flower indoors, and if fruit is what you want, start with the budded or grafted citrus.

GREEN ZINNIAS: Those of you who grew the apple-green zinnia Envy were pleased with it.

Answers to questions

F.G. of Lansford: "I have an Oleander plant which outgrew the indoor space available. We took clips and rooted them in some sand and peat moss. They did fine until we potted them up. They all died. Why?"

I think your soil mixture should have been baked before you transplanted the cuttings. We use a mixture of one-third each sand, peat and loam, with some perlite or vermiculite added. If you had baked the mixture in an oven at 180 degrees for one-half hour it would have killed off the harmful soil organisms.

The way you transplanted the cuttings may have had something to do with it. During the transplanting process, try not to break off any roots, if possible. Pry gently the roots from the starting medium, getting as many as possible. A broken root provides a door for soil organisms to enter.

You can cut your old oleander back half way or more. This will produce new shoots and these in time will flower. Meanwhile, you'll have a better plant.

H. J. of Cresco: "I'd like to send you my cure for birds. First, I tore old rags into strips, four to eight feet long. Also bought a ball of sisal rope about three-sixteenth-inch thick for two dollars. I placed the strips between opened places in the grape row."

We also made three scare crows as follows: a six-foot cross made from one inch by two inch lumber, put a woman's dress on it, stuffed plastic apple bags with a plastic cottony material for heads, painted eyes, noses and mouth with black paint on both sides of head.

Then I set a piece of stocking on top for a cap. Everything was stapled or tied securely.

Nailed a stick in an upright angle to each arm and tied a strip of light colored rag to it. I harvested five bushels of grapes and not a single bird dared to go near.

I'm going to try a plastic eagle next year in the cherry trees. An owl made from brown plastic material was worthless until I painted some large yellow eyes on it."

A. R. of Gilbert: "Last year we grew a lot of cherry tomatoes and I was disappointed with them. They grew by the millions, but we couldn't use them for canning. We prefer the large kind, and would like the name of a good variety or two."

The cherry tomato isn't for canning. All you need is one plant for your whole family. They dress up salads and are a "cocktail" tomato, nothing else.

Watch his big smile that says "Thank You"

When the boy comes to collect...

Your newspaperboy makes it his business to collect at a regular time—convenient to you.

That way he comes expected and you can be ready for him.

You can help, too, by having the money there so he won't have to come back. He'll appreciate that.

Because this boy is in business. He depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. And repeat calls for him mean extra work with no extra profit.

Hence, next time the boy comes by to collect, be ready—and watch his big smile, which says "Thank you."

Ann Landers

Yes, they are dangerous

Dear Ann Landers: One hears so much about drugs and pills and pot these days it is frightening. I'm writing about my 19-year-old college son. I respect his privacy. I don't snoop in his belongings and I don't ask too many questions. But I always go through his trouser pockets and turn them inside out before losing them into the washer.

Recently I came across two little green and white capsules. I had no idea what they were so I asked him. He said, "Oh, those are for when I have to cram for an exam. They help me stay awake." I asked if he got them from a doctor and he laughed. "All the kids get these pills from students whose dads are doctors or mothers are nurses. Free samples, I guess."

When he saw I was concerned he assured me that the pills are harmless and said, "Don't worry!" I am worried, however, and am asking you to tell me what you know about these pills.

EASTERN MOM

Dear Mom: The green and white capsules could be one of a number of things and I hesitate to guess, but they sound like pep pills. This is one of the amphetamines (goof balls) and they can wreck the central nervous system and cause convulsions if taken in excess. Tell your son to leave them alone.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a stenographer who is employed by a firm of lawyers. Several months ago the firm paid the expenses involved in my becoming a notary public.

Every one of my employers has, at one time or another, asked me to notarize signatures which were affixed to documents at a time when I was not present. This always bothers me but I have been told "It's not important, it's only a technicality..."

Today the senior partner asked me to notarize his son's signature. The young man has been out of the city for several days and it would not have been possible for him to have signed it. His name was put on by someone else. It was only an automobile license application, but all the same I felt guilty.

I alone am answerable and I am becoming extremely uncomfortable about these occurrences. Any suggestions?

INDIANAPOLIS

Dear In: Tell your bosses that from now on you refuse to notarize a document unless you are present at the signing. You may be canned, but a girl with such sterling character should have no trouble getting another job if her ability matches her integrity.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother is a lovely woman, 66 years of age, and she has terminal cancer. She knows of her condition but she is cheerful and noncomplaining. The doctors tell us she has six months at most and all we can do is keep her comfortable.

A neighbor who was always a gossip and a troublemaker has told several friends and relatives that mother has the kind of cancer that is contagious. For this reason she has had very few visitors. I've telephoned some of these people and tried to explain that this is untrue, but when fear takes over, logic flies out the window. Please say something on this subject.

GRIEVING DAUGHTER

Dear Daughter: No physician with whom I have talked knows of a single case of cancer which resulted from contagion. A person who would not visit your mother for this reason displays abysmal ignorance.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50c in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The bidding:

South West North East
1♥ Pass 2♠ Pass

Opening lead—king of spades. It is sometimes necessary to misrepresent your hand to partner in order to accomplish a particular purpose you have in mind. This is especially true on defense when a situation arises where you can afford to mislead partner at the expense of declarer.

Here is a typical case. Let's say you're East and partner opens the king of spades against four hearts. You can tell from the bidding and from seeing dummy that declarer is sure to make his contract with normal play. The most you can hope to score on defense are two spades and a trump.

But you're not supposed to give up the contract without a fight. What you generally do in such cases is attempt to throw a scare into declarer that will cause him to lose a trick he would not ordinarily lose.

With this in mind, you therefore play the eight of spades on partner's king and the six when he continues with the ace. By playing the 8-6 in that order you indicate you have no more spades and instruct your partner to lead still another spade.

When West obeys by continuing with the three, South, who has no particularly good reason to doubt that you started with a doubleton spade, may ruff in dummy with the jack of trumps. He is likely to reason that if he ruffs with the eight, you might overruff with the nine and thus place the contract in serious jeopardy.

Of course, when you follow suit to the third spade, South will realize that he was fooled by your plays, but it is too late for him to recover and he must go down one. He cannot prevent you from scoring two trump tricks, and the effect of that little white lie you told partner at the start is that you flummox South out of his apparently sure game.

Add a bit of blarney

St. Patrick's Day menu

BY LINDA PIPHER
Pocono Record Home
Economist

STROUDSBURG — Sure an' there's something about March 17 that brings out the Irish in all of us. "Top o' the mornin'" and "Begorra" are the greetings of the day. And though our auld sod may be far from the shores of County Cork and Kiltarney, it's a great day to get together for a bit o' the blarney!

Irish or not, it's a fine thing you'll be doing if you salute the Irish with a touch of green tomorrow, either with your dress or on your table.

Next to Mrs. Murphy's Chowder, the dish that has brought Erin its greatest fame is Corned Beef and Cabbage. Make it your main dish and of course add boiled cabbage and parsleyed boiled potatoes for a touch of green.

Another touch of green would be individual spinach souffles which would taste good with most any meat you serve. If you're not fond of corned beef. And you can add Irish Soda Bread, homemade via an easy recipe, dressed up for the occasion as shamrock rolls.

For your salad, any green gelatin salad will do nicely and you can even have a green dessert if you wish, such as Grasshopper Pie, pistachio ice-cream or tint your cake frosting green.

You might be interested in knowing that Swift and Company markets a tenderized corned beef that can be oven roasted. I have never had it, but if you shop where Swift products are sold, ask for it. It would be less time consuming to prepare. For those of you who like boiled corned beef, here is a recipe:

Glazed Corned Beef And Cabbage
6 to 7 lb. corned beef
1 clove garlic
2 bay leaves
4 whole cloves
4 white pepper corns
Large white cabbage
Boiled white potatoes and parsley

Place beef in a large saucepan and cover with water. Add seasoning. Bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, 3 to 4 hours until tender. Remove corned beef, reserving liquid, and place in roasting pan. Cut the outer fat "cross-patch" fashion.

Glazed corn beef with cabbage, new potatoes and shamrock rolls, topped off with Irish coffee, to provide a hearty Irish feast.

Prepare glaze by combining:
1/4 cup orange juice
1/4 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons corned beef stock
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Place over low heat, stirring until blended. Pour over corned beef and bake in a moderately hot 400 degree oven for 30 minutes, basting every 10 minutes to glaze. Meanwhile, strain remaining corned beef stock. Cut cabbage in 12 wedges and add to stock. Simmer 10 minutes until tender. Serve glazed corned beef with cabbage and boiled new potatoes tossed with chopped parsley. Makes 12 servings.

Individual Spinach Souffles
1/2 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk
2 packages (10-oz. each) frozen chopped spinach
1 tablespoon wine vinegar
3 eggs, beaten

Melt butter in heavy skillet. Blend in flour and salt. Remove from heat. Gradually add milk. Stirring constantly, cook until mixture thickens. Add cheese, frozen spinach, and vinegar. Stir occasionally until spinach thaws. Add eggs to spinach mixture and combine. Fill 12 paper bake cups with spinach. Bake in a slow 325 degree oven 30 to 35 minutes.

Bread Rolls
4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1/4 cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 tablespoons caraway seeds
1/2 cup butter
1 and one-third cups buttermilk
1 egg
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 egg yolk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a large cookie sheet. Sift together into a large bowl flour, sugar, salt and baking powder. Stir in caraway seeds. Blend in butter with a pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Combine buttermilk, egg, baking soda. Stir into flour mixture to form dough. Turn onto lightly floured surface. Knead until smooth — about 1 minute. Cut into 52 pieces about the size of a walnut. Gently press into round roll shapes and form into shamrock shapes on baking sheet, using dough scrapers for stems. Brush with slightly beaten egg yolk to glaze.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

I don't know why woolly caterpillars and groundhogs should get all the credit as weather forecasters. The first robin, welcome sight that he is, is even more unreliable. Especially when he appears in the midst of a January snowstorm and is more likely to be a flight school drop-out.

My favorite is the chipmunk. When they appear, as they did on Thursday morning, you can be sure of two things: that their burrows aren't covered with three feet of snow and that the temperature is high enough to thaw them out after their winter's hibernation, both of which are signs of spring to me.

It can't be that their winter's food supply is getting low, because I personally saw them lug away the better part of 20 pounds of my bird seed last fall. It's a wonder they had room to hibernate in those burrows they're so proud of.

And no wonder. Did you know that chipmunks have regular duplex apartments underground with a sleeping - living room on one level, a pantry for supplies on another, and a powder room in the basement?

But the chipmunk is also proof that clothes make the man. Women generally think that chipmunks are "cute" with their little striped fur coats,

African politics GOP theme

STROUDSBURG — "Problems of African Nationalism and Political Development" will be the theme of the talk to be given by Dr. I. S. Nwakorle at the March meeting of the Monroe Council of Republican Women at the Penn-Stroud Hotel on Wednesday at 2:30 p.m.

He was the recipient of a Nigerian Government Study Grant, and has earned his masters and doctor's degrees in this country. He plans to return to take up his post in the university this year.

He will discuss the question of whether the western form of democracy will work in Africa. Because of the informational value of his talk, the council has opened its meeting to anyone interested.

An executive board meeting will be held at 1 p.m.

By George, it'll live forever

'When Irish Eyes Are Smiling' written in 3 hours

Sunday will be St. Patrick's Day and George Graff, who wrote the words for "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," continues to be honored for his contribution to the Irish celebration.

Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — "The popular ballad, 'When Irish Eyes Are Smiling,' will never change," according to its writer, George Graff, "but the St. Patrick's Day parades are not what they used to be."

Graff, nattily dressed in an English tweed suit and looking 20 years younger than 62, sat in his modest hotel room at the Penn-Stroud and went over the story of how "Irish Eyes" was written, perhaps for the 25th time since he moved to Stroudsburg in 1942.

"It's been a long time since I watched a St. Patrick's Day parade in New York," Graff reminisced. "I think the last one was back in 1936 when I worked in an office on the corner of 45th St. and Fifth Avenue in Manhattan."

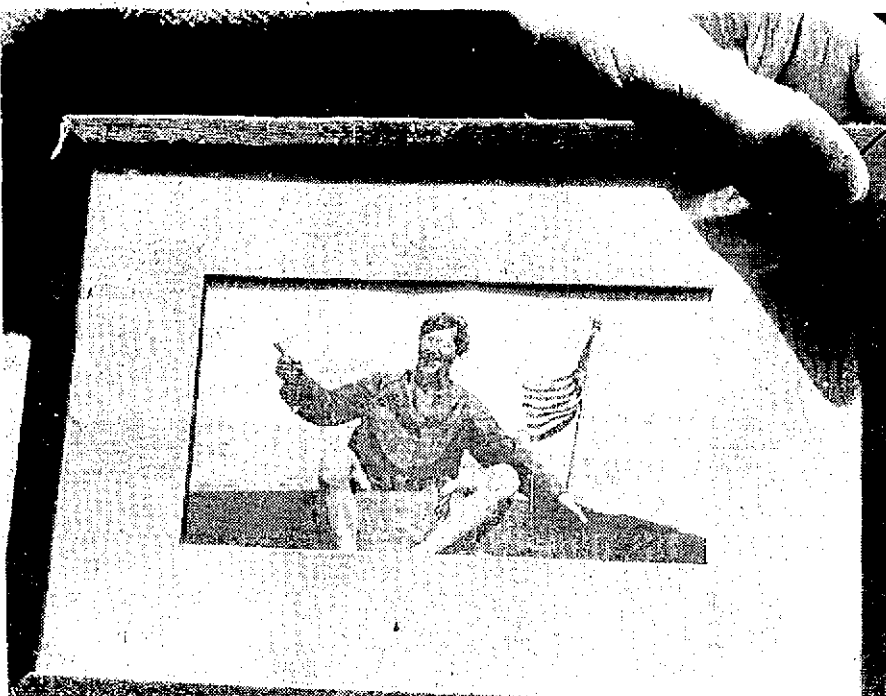

"We had an excellent view of the street below, and all the office girls would come in and watch all the parades."

"But things are different now, even the music publishing business has changed in every way."

Change of times

"If you were at all successful as a lyric writer or a composer, you were a staff writer, full time. Now-a-days, there's no such thing as a staff writer," the veteran musician said.

Graff said that when he was a youth back in 1912, he worked in the office of a cutlery importing firm and considered song writing as only a profitable sideline.

His big chance came when M. Witmark and Son, one of the nation's largest music publishing firms, called him to do "just one more song" for the show "Isle O' Dreams."

Graff and his partner, Ernest R. Ball had been hired by Chauncey Olcott, the foremost Irish actor and singer of the era, to do the musical numbers for the show and had finished about a dozen.

The show went through many rehearsals, but at the last minute, Olcott decided he needed one more song.

One ballad, "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold" was an instant hit and eventually sold about two and a half million copies.

When the request for another number came, Graff was recuperating from an operation but went over to Olcott's office right away. He was told to write the lyrics and mail them to his partner, Ball, who would then write the music.

"I had nothing to go on," Graff said, "but walking along Broadway on my way home, I had an idea about Irish eyes smiling."

Three hours after reaching home, Graff had written the famous ballad and mailed it to Ball, who wrote the melody the next day.

Although the number was a show-stopper at every performance, it was not a hit as a record, Graff related.

"But somehow, the song found its way to Ireland where, in the '20's, it was considered a folk song," Graff said.

Returns home

It took the Irish immigrants to America to bring it back home, and it really became a classic after John McCormack added the number to his concert agenda.

During their partnership, Ball and Graff wrote about 50 songs and Graff alone has had about 400 published. He is a charter member of ASCAP and was a friend of Jeff O'Hara and Billy Dillon, who have visited him here in Stroudsburg. O'Hara and Dillon were internationally famous composers.

A native of New York, Graff is of Holland Dutch descent, not Pennsylvania. He emphasized. He moved to Stroudsburg in 1942 after spending many years at a summer home in the Delaware Water Gap.

Graff has one daughter, Mrs. Rosemary McMahon, of East Stroudsburg, who is a teacher at East Stroudsburg State College, and two grandchildren.

Robert G. Bartlett

State highway official plans visit to area

STROUDSBURG — Robert G. Bartlett, state chairman of Pennsylvania Highway Commission, will address the Stroudsburg Rotary Club in the Penn Stroud Hotel on March 21, Dr. John A. Abbruzzese, Jr., program chairman, announced Friday.

Bartlett, who is state chairman for the 1968 Easter Seal campaign will speak on "The Easter Seal Campaign and Crippled Children in Pennsylvania." The public is invited to attend.

Dr. Abbruzzese is also Monroe County chairman for the campaign.

Bartlett, a graduate of the United States Military Academy in engineering, holds an M.B.A. degree from Lehigh University and is a native of Bethlehem, where he was named Outstanding Young Man of the Year in 1962.

Named Secretary of Highways in Jan., 1967, Bartlett also serves on the Executive Committee of the American Road Builders Assn., the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission, and the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission.

The Bartletts currently reside in Camp Hill.

Heart attack, not burns, proves fatal

EAST STROUDSBURG — An autopsy performed on Gilmour E. Miller, 76, of Allentown, proved he died of a heart attack and not as a result of body burns.

Miller and his wife drove to their summer home in McMichaels Thursday. Mrs. Miller remained in the car while her husband went into the home to build a fire.

His charred body was found on the kitchen floor in front of the stove. The body was found by a neighbor, Floyd Moyer.

Monroe County Deputy Coroner William Kresge said it is believed that Miller entered the home to build the fire, had the attack, fell to the floor and material from the fire set his clothing on fire.

New Jersey resident free on bail

STROUDSBURG — Bruce L. Winters Jr., 33, of Paramus, N.J., is free on $1,000 bail on a charge of pointing a deadly weapon made Thursday by State Police from Mount Pocono.

Winters allegedly fired a single shot from a .357 magnum pistol near a young couple in Redders.

Robert Price, 18, of Stroudsburg, R.D. 3, and Diane Mallory, 17, of Redders, were walking down the sidewalk of the Mallory home when the shot was fired.

Winters was apprehended 45 minutes later in Scotrun by Trooper James Harris.

County seeks aid on project

BUCK HILL FALLS — Barrett Township Supervisors were approached for their support of the dam project on Upper Broadhead Creek by the Monroe County Commissioners at a meeting Friday night.

Speaking for the commissioners, chairman Elwood Hintze noted the need for action in order to qualify for state funds to be allocated no later than June 30. Hintze said with the township supervisor approval, the commissioners will negotiate with the 10 landowners involved to achieve right-of-way or easements on the 257-acre tract.

He emphasized that no financial involvement of the township would result, but rather, the action would add prestige and leverage with the landowners.

John Linder and Carl Ries, representing the Pocono Mountains Vacationland Assn. and the Barrett Lions reported on their project to remove junk cars from along Rt. 390 in Mountainhome. Ries said that arrangements have been made with Donald Mick with 100 per cent cooperation of Mick.

Free towing

Linder said that Richard Price and Arthur McCambridge also contributed to the effort. The project will be completed under a contract with a New Jersey firm in three weeks. Local residents may have any junk cars removed at no charge. The cars will be broken up and trucked to Jersey City for disposal, Linder said.

Lloyd LaBar, secretary-treasurer, commended both men for "a job well done."

It was noted that the supervisors will enact an ordinance at their April meeting which will provide for half of the current one per cent real estate transfer tax to revert to the township. Estimated proceeds based on last year's tax will be $2,500.

Also to be enacted at the next meeting will be a sewage inspection ordinance which carries a $30 price tag with each application for next sewage construction.

New rules for parking begin Monday in E.S.

EAST STROUDSBURG — New parking regulations in East Stroudsburg, recently approved by the borough council will begin Monday, according to Mayor Thomas L. Kistler.

Thirty minute parking is allowed from 8 a.m. to midnight on the west side of South Courtland St., from the southern limits of the property of Otto Gehm to Starbird St.

No parking here to corner on the west side of South Courtland St., from the southern limits of the property of Otto Gehm to Starbird St.

No trucks except for local delivery on Braeside Ave., from Ridgeway St. to Elk St., from Elk St. to Braeside Ave. and Prospect St.

Welfare given $11,000 check

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners Thursday announced receipt of more than $11,000 as a first quarter payment to the county Child Welfare program.

A letter from state Secretary of Health Dr. Thomas W.

Georges Jr. confirmed a payment of $11,004 to the county agency.

The amount is under regular payments to counties under the child welfare services program and is for the first quarter from Jan. 1, 1968 to March 31, 1968.

The funds are to be used explicitly for county child welfare programs headed by Charles Jones director.

Mrs. Nancy Shukaitis reported that $4,585 had been received from the State Department of Welfare for the Tri-County Mental Health Association for the period from April 1 to June 30, 1968.

In a salary board session, commissioner Secretary Kathleen Fehr received a salary increase from $94 to $98 per week.

It has been reported that Miss Fehr will soon replace Mrs. Wilita Rogalski, an employee at Pleasant Valley Manor, the county's home for the aged.

It was reported several weeks ago that Miss Rogalski would be replaced in a move initiated by Pleasant Valley Administrator Lawrence Butz but to date no official word has been released by the commissioners and both Miss Fehr and Miss Rogalski have remained at their posts. It has been indicated that commissioners are seeking a replacement for Miss Fehr.

Chairman Elwood Hintze stated, "She (Miss Fehr) was entitled to this raise," and said it implied nothing else.

Also granted a salary increase was Custodian Arthur Fralley from $70 to $74 per week.

A meeting with Robert J. Freiler, director of the Bureau of Government Donated Food, will be held in the commissioners' office March 21.

McCarthy group to hold meeting

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County McCarthy for President Committee will hold its third meeting Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at 100 Marguerite St., East Stroudsburg.

The session will be open to the public and any high school and college students interested in working for the campaign are welcome to attend.

Good choice, John

True to the tradition of the great outdoors, Game Protector John Spencer of Swiftwater confessed that his favorite television program was Daniel Boone.

Did you ever check his hunting license, John?

Sign of spring

A sure sign that spring must be there was seen throughout the Stroudsburgs Friday.

Most of the snow tires on the cars were well worn down and the motorists will have to change their tires for summer treads.

Special program

Radio station WVPO will present a St. Patrick's Day special feature honoring George Graff, local composer and arranger who wrote one of the all-time favorites, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

The musical tribute will be aired today at 1 p.m. with Sally Ferrebee introducing Ed Hill of Bushkill, well known Pocono Mountain vocalist and guitarist who will sing several Irish ballads including "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" and Graff's current favorite, "The Impossible Dream."

Guest at Lehigh

Edward Driebe, Stroudsburg, is currently an off-campus guest at the three-day "New Dimensions" program being held at Lehigh University, Bethlehem.

The program is the sixth in a continuing series to discuss new and future educational programs.

Initial stickers

Area motorists are reminded that Friday was the first day that registration stickers were allowed to be placed on licenses.

The new red and white stickers should be placed directly over the 1967 tag.

Chamber reaffirms position

STROUDSBURG — The Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce's board of directors Friday reaffirmed its position in attracting new industry and employees into the region.

Joseph A. Lisicky, Chamber president, told the board at the Penn-Stroud Hotel that "the basic concept and policy of the Chamber is to attract new industry and employees to the Pocono Mountains."

"But," Lisicky added, "in our current enviable high employment position we are most fortunate in being able to go after high caliber industry and diversified industrial complexes because of our low rate of unemployment in this area."

Lisicky's remarks came after Foster J. Blair, executive secretary of the Chamber, read a letter from Ronson Corp. of Delaware Water Gap, expressing concern for the lack of employees in the region.

Ralph E. Reppert, president of Pocono Mountains Industries, Inc., an arm of the Chamber, said, "although we haven't heard from Eric Lackawanna officials of late, I feel E-L has a contact for a site at the Montgomery S. Crowe Industrial Park in Stroud Township."

He also commented that E-L has an option to March 31 on land at Crowe Park. He said the option expires at that time without a renewal clause.

Lisicky read a letter from State Sen. Newell Wood offering "enthusiastic cooperation" with the Chamber whenever his services are needed.

Blair announced that the official 1968 Pennsylvania Roadmap is available at the Chamber's office at 7th St., Stroudsburg.

The board approved as "good management" bulk rate of mailing proposal and third class mail proposal whenever applicable.

Gap's police officer Nassau force veteran

By RICK METHOT

Pocono Record Reporter

DELAWARE WATER GAP — For Charles Lepper being a police officer meant a good share of homicides, traffic fatalities, and suicide in New York's bustling Nassau County sandwiched between metropolitan Queens and sprawling Suffolk County, stretching to the far tip of Long Island.

For Lepper the pace may have changed from an 11-year stint on Nassau County's crack all-emergency squad as part of a 3,500-man force but the dedication to duty still remains.

Lepper is the new Delaware Water Gap Chief of Police, sworn in Friday morning by borough mayor and ex-police chief himself, Fred Decker.

It's quite a switch from a 3,500 man team to a two-man squad but Lepper doesn't think the change will affect his duties in the Gap.

"The work will still be the same," he said but hinted that it could be a bit less hectic than the Long Island Expressway at 5 p.m.

For Lepper, now living in Gilbert, police work is serious and a deeply personal business. The personable new Water Gap officer felt the tragedy of auto accidents strike his own home losing a daughter in a Long Island crash several years ago.

Lepper cites the accident and New York's growing bottleneck of traffic as the main reasons for deciding to resign and come to the Poconos.

Outwardly friendly and quick to smile Lepper said that there will be no time for "hotshots" in Delaware Water Gap.

"If they would only stop and realize that it only takes a second," he said speaking of the familiar twisted mass of wreckage that often ends in sorrow for someone's family.

"It can happen to the best of drivers," Lepper added.

Experience goes further than the more unpleasant aspects of police work for the new chief as he recalled one fond memory of the Long Island "beat".

Lepper can claim the distinction of delivering a set of twin daughters for a Nassau County mother—on Father's Day.

In Delaware Water Gap Lepper will work with part-time policemen William Snow to help cover the 35 to 40 miles of patrol that includes all of the borough.

An important role for the new chief is the safety of the borough's school children as Lepper will be on post at 6 a.m., noon, and 3 p.m. to oversee crossing lanes.

At 3:30 p.m. his schedule calls for keeping a watchful eye on the massive Ronson Corp., as a day-shift prepares to leave the county's largest manufacturing company.

Lepper plans to move into the Gap with his wife, Margaret, son Charles Jr., 21, a United States Marine and a Vietnam veteran now home on leave, and daughter Patricia, 20, as soon as a suitable home is available.

Lepper also is supervisor of the borough's road maintenance crew and responsible for the Gap streets and roads as the borough's only full-time paid employee.

What was it like the first day on the job? Mostly quiet for Lepper, a day that included school crossings and a warning to an over-eager driver plus a wish that all the days to come are as free from the tragedy of serious automobile accidents in Delaware Water Gap.

Mid-Atlantic drive passes $10,000

STROUDSBURG — L. P. Harris, business manager for the Mid-Atlantic Music and Art Center, said Friday that cash donations for the new area music camp have climbed past the $10,000 mark.

The announcement was made during a meeting of MAMAC workers and captains in the board room of the Arlington Branch of the First Stroudsburg National Bank.

According to Harris $13,139 in pledges and $10,239 has been received to date for the camp that will operate for the first time in the county this summer on the grounds of the former Onawa lodge, Mountainhome.

Edward G. Bellhorn, campaign solicitation drive chairman, directed Friday's meeting of the workers that include 22 team captains and 175 workers.

Harris said that 3,000 pledge cards have been distributed for future solicitation aimed for the tri-county, Monroe, Pike and Northampton counties.

Mrs. E. Holt Wyckoff is co-chairman of the drive that has set $50,000 as a minimum goal for the camp that hopes to present a Pocono Music Festival this summer.

Named Friday was Walter Wyckoff, chairman for the center city business solicitation with Herman Lubner as co-chairman. Waller Adelman

Tarheels rout Bonnies; Davidson nips Lions

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — All-American Larry Miller scored 27 points to lead North Carolina's Tar Heels to a crushing 91-72 victory over previously unbeaten St. Bonaventure in the NCAA basketball Eastern Regionals Friday night.

Davidson defeated Columbia 61-59 in overtime in the opening game and will play North Carolina Saturday night for the right to represent the East at Los Angeles where the national championship will be determined March 22-23.

Miller and Charlie Scott led fourth-ranked North Carolina to a 40-30 halftime lead. Then, in the second half, the Tar Heels turned the game into a rout in handing third-ranked St. Bonaventure its first loss in 24 games this season.

In the opener, eighth-ranked Davidson raced to a 10-point lead in the first half but had to go into overtime to nip seventh-ranked Columbia.

Houston wrecks Louisville, 91-75

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Top-ranked Houston, led by All-American Elvin Hayes and ball-stealing Don Chaney, wrecked Louisville with a fantastic 25-3 spurt in the first half and went on to a 91-75 victory in the NCAA Midwest regional semifinals Friday night.

Only in the first few minutes was it the tight battle which the Houston coach, Guy Lewis, predicted. Louisville was in front 12-8 with 4½ minutes gone after Jerry King hit three straight corner shots against the Houston zone defense.

Less than nine minutes later Houston led 33-15.

It was Houston's 31st straight victory, 30 this season. Louisville's 12-game winning streak was ended. The ninth-ranked Louisville Cardinals now stand 20-7.

Once the unbeaten Houston Cougars started to take control, they made it look easy. The long-armed Chaney stole passes on the outside while Hayes and 6-foot-7 Theodis Lee took the ball away from Louisville's All-American Westley Unseld on the inside.

For the game, Hayes outscored Unseld 35 to 23 and led 24 to 22 in rebounds. Hayes hit 16 of 31 field shots and Unseld 9 of 16.

Bruins win despite slowdown

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Second-ranked UCLA was slowed to a crawl but beat back inspired New Mexico State 58-49 Friday night in the opening round of the NCAA Far West Regional Basketball Tournament at Albuquerque.

UCLA's 7-foot-1½ All American Lew Alcindor controlled both backboards by grabbing 23 rebounds and led all scorers with 28 points. But it was the outside shooting of the Bruins and New Mexico State's foul trouble which decided the issue.

Alcindor broke a 35-35 tie with a free throw with 13:19 to play and then followed with a three-point play to give UCLA, 26-1, a 39-35 lead it never gave up.

Kentucky, Ohio St. advance

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky blasted Marquette 107-89 and Ohio State held off East Tennessee 79-72 Friday night in the semifinals of the NCAA Midwest Regional Basketball Tournament.

Kentucky meets Ohio State Saturday night, with the winner advancing to the championship round next weekend at Los Angeles.

Sophomore Dan Issel pounded in 36 points, 26 in the first half, as Kentucky took charge early and was never threatened.

East Tennessee led early in the game but was plagued by errors and was down by 12 before halftime.

When errors and cold shooting plagued the Bucs early in the second half, Ohio State took advantage and rolled to a 58-40 lead with 10:12 to go.

Canham named Michigan AD

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The University of Michigan Friday named Don Canham, who never had a losing season in his 19 years as track coach, to succeed H.O. "Fritz" Crisler as athletic director of the Big Ten school.

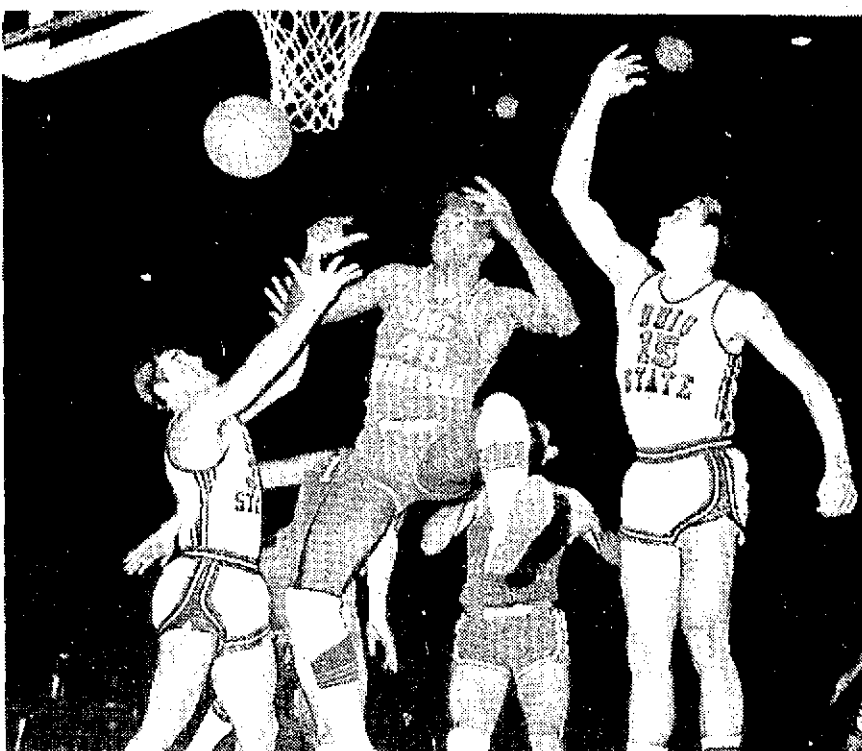

The university's board of regents announced at its regular monthly meeting that Canham would replace Crisler, who retires June 30.

Killy blames soft course for third place finish

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Austria's Gerhard Niening skinned over the two-mile downhill course in 1:59.49 to defeat favored Jean-Claude Killy of France and fellow countryman Karl Schranz in the Roch Cup competition Friday.

Another Austrian, Heini Messner, sailed over the course that dropped 2,600 feet in 2:01.82 for second place. Killy, triple gold winner in the Olympics last month, was clocked in third place at 2:01.82. Billy Kidd of Stowe, Vt., led the U.S. contingent with a fourth-place time of 2:02.21.

Schranz was timed at 2:02.36 for a fifth place.

Niening said the course, coated with powder snow that fell the past few days on top of a four-foot base, "was just the type suited to my style."

Niening said he gained the precious fraction of seconds that assured him victory on the flat section of the run, glazed in brilliant sunshine.

Schranz blamed his relatively poor showing to "the wax I used was a little hard."

Killy told reporters his third place finish was because "the course was too soft."

The super skier from France said he lost time especially on strawpile turn about three-quarters of a mile from the finish. He said he swung wide "because it was so soft."

Kidd, who finished fourth for the best American showing said he found the course "a little soft." He also said he lost time on the strawpile turn because of its mussy condition.

Canada's Nancy Greene, seeking to repeat her victory in World Cup competition, won the 1½-mile long Roch Cup downhill race in 1:33.29.

Miss Greene, 24-year-old college coed now in fourth place in World Cup standings, outdistanced the Olympic downhill champion from Austria Olga Pall who toured the sunny course with a 2,050 foot drop in 1:34.17.

Red Witman says it's hard for a team the size of East Stroudsburg State to compete for national honors. The only hope is for a good showing.

Asked to compare the calibre of wrestling in the East Witman added "its tough to compare the Pennsylvania State College Conference with the other Eastern schools because of the lack of head-to-head meetings. But in the mid-season ratings there were two PSCC boys (Gary Cook of ESSC and Ken Melchior of Lock Haven) on the first team. No other Eastern school placed a boy on the first team."

"In the midwest they work a lot harder than in other areas. They work as many as three hours a day all season along. In addition they give out as many as 35 full scholarships and take only the best boy available, never the second best," Witman added.

As far as the upcoming NCAA tournament at Penn State Witman noted that you won't see anything fancy when you get to the semifinals and finals. The champ will be the boy that has mastered the simple moves and really wants the crown.

Commenting on the PSCC championships his Warriors won earlier this month Witman said "we wouldn't have won without the likes of Chet Dalgewicz, Jan Dutt and Bob Guzzo. Even though they weren't on this year's club they helped build the status which sparked this year's young club."

Referring to his boy Chet, Witman said "He (Chet) never berated any member on this year's Stroudsburg High wrestling team. He stood behind his boys all year and never tore down anyone. The easiest job is to bounce someone not giving his all, the hardest is keep him and work with him."

Before Dalgewicz began his inspiring talk at the testimonial dinner Thursday night he revealed how he came to attend ESSC.

As a senior at Pennsbury he had many offers. But after only one meeting with Witman he was swayed by him. Dalgewicz added "Witman is someone you can look up to. I've never regretted my decision to attend ESSC and I learned more from this man than from anyone except my parents. But most of all he showed me how to be a man. He will always be my coach."

Dalgewicz also went into detail on the story of the "turkey he didn't get for Christmas".

It seems that one of his teaching companions told him that the school gave turkeys to all teachers for the holidays. Chet then wrote his parents telling them not to worry about a bird for Christmas that he would be getting one.

The word quickly spread and everyone from Samuel W. Wells III, superintendent of schools to the secretaries in all of the elementary schools were onto the "game".

As of Thursday night Dalgewicz was still waiting for his bird although Doc Helman, president of the Varsity S assured him he would get one.

Cathedral wins Class B title

HARRISBURG (AP) — Scranton Cathedral took a 72-71 lead, with 1:58 to go, Friday night and went on to defeat Carrick St. Basil, 77-76, for the Class B PCIAA state championship.

St. Basil's Ed Banazak sank a jumpshot as the game ended, but officials ruled it came after the buzzer.

Cathedral's Paul Biko was a one-man show for the winners, scoring 38 points, many on driving layups. It was Biko's two fouls, with 1:58 left, that gave Cathedral a lead from which it was never headed.

The Cavaliers had led 36-30 at halftime, but fell behind in the third period at 40-39. With 4:57 left in the final period, Cathedral trailed at 54-63.

Putting on a furious, full-court press, the Cavaliers pulled within one point several times, and finally went ahead on Biko's fouls.

John Silinski led St. Basil's with 29, while Rich Greb and Tom Dominowski had 14 apiece.

Villanova and Kansas meet in one of Monday night's quarter-finals.

Jones, who scored 20 points in the first half when Villanova wrapped up the game, and the Wildcats' zone defense completely stumped the Cowboys, making their first NIT appearance.

Villanova used an 11-4 run for a 32-20 lead and then ran off 11 straight points to increase it to 43-25 as Jones, a 6-foot-4 junior forward, hit nine points.

The Wildcats led 47-25 at the half with Jones topping a 68 per cent shooting show from the field with seven of nine.

Wyoming, the Western Athletic Conference runnerup, was seldom able to get a good shot against the ever-present Villanova defense and never got back in the game. The final 11-point deficit was the closest the Cowboys came.

Jones finished with 38 points and Mike Eberle paced Wyoming with 16 as Harry Hall, a 20-point per game scorer, was held to 10.

White, a 6-foot-3 senior, handled the ball against the aggressive Temple press and teamed with fellow guard Phil Harmon for the points that kept the Jayhawks out of reach in the second half.

After Bruce Sloan's basket put Kansas ahead 41-40, Harmon and White each scored six points for a 53-45 lead and the Owls never got closer than four again.

The lead reached 78-64 before eight straight Temple points closed the gap, but Harmon and White each hit two free throws to clinch the victory.

Harmon finished with 21 points and White 19, but Temple's John Baum led all scorers with 25, 15 of them in the second half when he kept the Owls in the game.

Kansas, runner-up in the Big Eight, relied on a deliberate offense, a pressing zone defense and a big height advantage—the starting five averaged about 6-foot-6—to grab a 35-32 lead in the nip and tuck first half.

The height and an over-all 51.6 shooting percentage from the field paid off in the second half against the scrambling Owls, who finished at 19-9. Kansas is 20-7.

Nazareth to start March 31

Reading oval opens Sunday

STROUDSBURG — The Reading Fairgrounds gets the jump on the other area tracks Sunday when it presents its first program of 1968.

Nazareth has set its first race for March 31 while Middletown, N.Y. won't open until April 20.

Bobby Seidel and Jackie Hamilton, two of the most consistent Reading Stock Car Association regulars, will challenge the top modified drivers in the modified opener at the Reading Fairgrounds.

Seidel, of Boyertown, and Hamilton, of Thorofare, N.J., hope to get a piece of the purse of $4,500 being offered by co-promoters Lindy Vicari and Al Gaspari.

The winner of the 30-lap feature will earn $700 and a big field is expected for the seven-event program.

Time trials have been booked for this afternoon starting at 1:45 o'clock and cars which fail to take time tomorrow will start in the rear of the field in the 10-lap qualifying heats on Sunday.

The first heat goes at 2 o'clock and there will be a pair of 10-lap consolation races and a field of 28 will go in the feature.

Nazareth

Pre-season ideas usually are a dime a dozen, but would you believe that three heads are better than one — and when they're Nazareth Director Jerry Fried, Flemington's Bill Kinnaman and Orange County's Al Howard, you can bet the "idea" is for better modified stock car racing.

IDEA: Three open-competition tracks unite to operate "quaduple" multiple system point fund.

RESULT: Added bonus for drivers; keener competition for racing fans and the possibility of a $10,000 point fund — with the full cooperation of Mother Nature.

The new point fund will in no way alter the weekly operation of the individual tracks. Each will operate independently, awarding bonus points to its drivers toward the "quaduple" multiple system Nazareth's Big track serving as the fourth speedway.

Fried announced that Nazareth will continue to run Sundays on the one-half-mile oval, with the big track being used for special events. The first, a 100-mile modified stock program, April 28th. On July 13th, the USAC Championship Cars will return for a scheduled 100-miler.

Middletown

Thirty-four racing dates have been pencilled in for the Orange County Fair Speedway, which opens its 1968 season on Saturday evening, April 20. In addition to two dozen regular Saturday night stock car racing programs, Al Howard, Speedway President, announced that the Speedway will run once on a Wednesday night, July 31, during Orange County Fair week, and on eight Sunday afternoons.

The evening of July 4 is the tentative date for the stopover of the All-Star League. The Speedway will again be participating in the league, comprised of tracks from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts. The league makes one stop at each track.

The Saturday evening programs and the one Wednesday scheduled will be devoted exclusively to the stock cars, with three separate classes running this year in comparison to the two classes of previous seasons. The new class is limited to non-veteran drivers and will be for semi-late models from 1955 to 1964. The engines of these cars cannot

JIM MURRAY Flamboyant as spy

In my years of covering athletics, there are, I suppose, 90 percent of the athletes I never see except on second base, in a locker room, shower, whirlpool bath, on a rubbing table, or a horse, the pivot, playing flanker or wing, putting for a dance or hitting the heavy bag.

They don't bother the Museum of Modern Art much. Faneuil Hall might be an attraction for visiting history teachers but not for visiting teams. On offdays they might be more apt to visit a neighborhood shoot-out than the battlefield at Gettysburg, and, if you run into one in a library, chances are he's checking out the librarian, not a book.

But Leonard Randolph Wilkens and Frank Oliver Howard are the only ones I ever saw almost more of in church than in a game. Big Frank was unmistakable in church, but Lenny Wilkens was as unobtrusive as he is on the basketball court. It's a way of life with Lenny whom I used to see as often at the 10 o'clock mass at St. Joseph's in St. Louis as they did on the court in Kiel Auditorium.

Lenny Wilkens, generally, is about as flamboyant as a spy.

He never smiles, sweats, shouts or cries. He looks constantly as if he just got bad news from home or a telegram from the front. He makes a basket bound look happy. He goes through table, or a horse, the pivot, playing flanker or wing, putting for a dance or hitting the heavy bag.

Smother's the enemy

His act has long since ceased to fool the National Basketball Assn. They know Lenny as one of the deadliest assassins of the game, the hardward court equivalent of a James Bond character who drops out of a tree, wraps around your Adam's apple, and disappears almost before you have hit the ground.

The showing of the St. Louis Hawks in the NBA this year has surprised most seers. It is a team which is supposed to be in the caboose of the league. Without the glamorous Big Man of another era, or of other teams, it is a team which you would say, if it were a baseball team, "Beats you with the glove." Its style of play is simply "Cool it." It slows everything down to a point where the game seems to be running backward like a football coach's film projector. It calls time out when the action gets too torrid for its slower, bulkier players. It smothers the opposition, doesn't dazzle it.

It is a team which caused a newspaper man to complain in mid-season, "I don't see how they do it, they don't have a single super-star on the team."

"Oh yeah," retorted a colleague, "what the hell would you call Lenny Wilkens?"

Rival coach Butch van Breda Koff and player Jerry West know what to call Lenny Wilkens and so does his own coach, Richie Guerin. "Makes their offense go — smart, clever, what I call a 'New York-type' player," says van Breda Koff. "Quick as hell in the roughest type of competition," says Jerry West. "He tries to be inconspicuous out there but he's always trying to pick the lock." "He's our quarterback on the floor," says Richie Guerin. "He's more responsible for our success than anybody."

Raised in the spiritless slums of Bedford-Stuyvesant in Brooklyn, people have always been predicting the electric chair or the shoddy chair for Lenny, if only because he was fatherless at an early age and it sometimes seems as if all the rest of the neighborhood was aiming in those directions. A succession of tough, Irish Catholic priests kept making it their business to put Lenny on the path of righteousness, completely overlooking that he had never strayed from it. "The only gang he ever belonged to was the Catholic Church," a friend recalled recently. And Tommy Davis, a boyhood chum, recalls the time the police frisked him in a hunt for switchblade knives, and found instead only rosary beads.

What the good fathers and the neighborhood cops didn't know was that Lenny, on his grandmother's side, was as Irish as they were. It accounts for the fact he never misses Mass or a free throw, and becomes, on March 17 each year, Lenny O'Wilkens. The only thing it doesn't account for is his quietness and unobtrusiveness. On his father's side must have been a butler.

Narrow but nice—medium priced house provides space

NARROW BUT PLEASANT: Although it has a frontage of only 35 feet, ideal for a prospective home owner with a small lot, this house has been designed to appear wider by not using a full gable, a device that also gives the front a cheerful look.

By ANDY LANG

AP NEWSFEATURES
When not mowing the lawn, painting the fence, attending community functions, etcetera, etcetera, etcetera, the American home owner is busy answering questions.

The owner of a ranch, split level, two-story (or whatever) is a participant in an endless variety of surveys designed to find out what makes him tick. It begins even before he takes possession of the deed and continues up to and through retirement.

The results of a single survey seem impressive and conclusive—until a new one furnishes an array of statistics that makes it plain the previous figures were tabulated on a broken adding machine. But a third survey shows up the first two as completely misleading.

Thumbing through the conclusions of a huge pile of recent surveys, we came across several which warranted more than passing attention, not only because they were interesting, but because the figures were compiled by authoritative sources.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards reported that the median price of existing homes in August of this year was $19,662, almost $1,000 higher than the median price in August of 1966. The three-bedroom home was tops in popularity, at 57 per cent, followed by the four-bedroom - or - more home, at 23 per cent, and the two-bedroom - or - less, at 20 per cent.

From Housing Trends came the word that 2,970,000 families own second homes, with the figure expected to be more than one million higher in the near future, and with 2½ million other families likely to buy second homes eventually. The growing participation of women in family financial affairs was emphasized in a survey by Market Facts Inc. In the under-30 group, 46 per cent of the couples interviewed made joint financial decisions; in 20 per cent of the cases, the wife made the decision by herself, and 34 per cent of the time, the husband made the key money verdicts.

In higher age groups, the percentage of joint decisions increased somewhat. But at age 65 and over, more decision-making was done independently by either mate and consequently, less on a joint basis. This could mean, but probably does not, that by the time two persons reach 65, they have decided who can better determine what to do with their money.

One of the most interesting surveys, conducted by Raymond Loewy - William Smith Inc., brought these conclusions: "The female is the prime motivating force in the family decision to buy a house... the male's strongest motivations in relations to housing concern his feelings about privacy, the acquisition of possessions... women shop for homes, whereas men tend to respond less readily to appeals in housing... the female is practical about housing; the male tends to fantasize, imagining his dwelling to be more satisfactory than it is in fact... The motivational reactions at model home sites demonstrate the sharp differences between expectations and the realities. Generally speaking, viewers are disappointed in what is offered. In particular, the recreation rooms and the back-of-the-house areas produce the most violent negative reactions. General approval is given to the living room and the master bedroom - bathroom combination. Men are favorably impressed by the foyer and the kitchen, women are not."

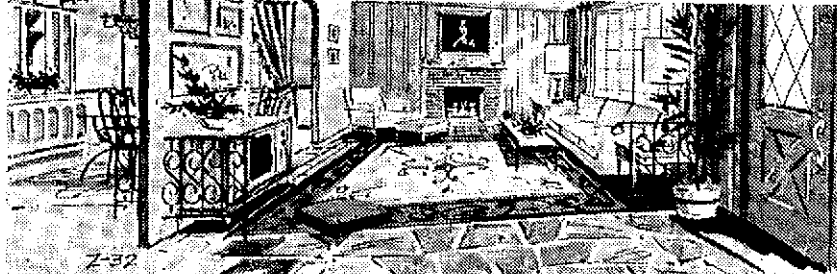

(The replies to 35 questions about housing and home repair are contained in Andy Lang's booklet, "Here's the Answer," which can be obtained by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 954, Jamaica, N. Y. 11431.)

Here's the Answer

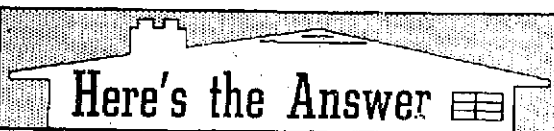

Question: In laying vinyl asbestos tile, do I use the black adhesive that I used some years ago in putting down asphalt tile or do I use some other kind?

Answer: The same type is used for both kinds of tile. It's the kind which must be allowed to dry to the touch before placing any tiles on it. Our advice on this subject is constant: always buy the adhesive in the same store where you purchase the tiles so that you will be certain of getting the proper kind. Tiles other than vinyl asbestos and asphalt require an adhesive that looks something like molasses, into which the tiles are placed while it is still wet.

(You can get Andy Lang's booklet, "Installing Resilient Floor Tiles," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P. O. Box 954, Jamaica, N. Y. 11431.)

VIEW FROM FOYER: Living room, with fireplace at far end, is made to seem larger by separating it from the foyer with only two low wrought-iron railings rather than partial wall.

Question: I started a home workshop about a year ago. Since then, I have completed a number of projects around the house.

My woodworking seems all right, but I never am quite satisfied with the way my finishing jobs come out, especially when I am using a clear finish.

For instance, I think there are some times when I should have used a wood filler and other times when I did not do so and should have.

Also, I am somewhat confused when I should use a liquid filler and when I should use a paste filler. Can you straighten me out?

ANSWER: A liquid filler is merely a term used to describe what actually is a sealer.

Whether it be a lacquer sealer, a varnish sealer of a thin coat of shellac, it is used on woods that have small pores, such as birch and maple. But this step is often skipped. On woods that have large pores, such as mahogany, walnut, oak, chestnut and hickory, paste wood fillers are used when it is desired to remove the textured look. In that event, a sealer is put on over the wood filler to be certain that the final finish, whatever it may be, does not dislodge the filler. This sealer is not applied until absolutely certain that the filler is thoroughly dry. The filler is never used when it is desired to retain the open-pored effect of the wood.

Incidentally, wood filler usually sets very quickly, so if a large surface is to be filled, it is better to do it in sections rather than all at one time.

In many areas, the high cost of land poses an increasingly serious problem for the family that wants a house built to order.

This week, architect Herman H. York took on the challenge of designing for a narrow lot a house of moderate cost, yet large enough to satisfy the needs of a family requiring three bedrooms. Only 35 foot wide, it will fit on a lot 50 foot in width, allowing an aggregate side-yard total of 15 feet, an arrangement that will satisfy most zoning ordinances in which small lots are approved.

Unusual in this plan is a built-in, one-car garage, eliminating the need for a driveway down one side of the house, so common to houses on narrow lots. Another feature is the appearance of the house from the street.

Most narrow houses have a gable the full width, creating an appearance of smallness, for the house is actually greater in depth than in width. Here, however, the architect runs the ridge across to give an optical illusion of length and holds the gabled portico over the front door, thus providing a covered entry in an attractive manner.

The use of brick across the entire front also adds to the illusion of greater width.

Analyzing the floor plan, we find a center hall layout with good circulation from the front door to other parts of the living areas. Both the fireplaced living room and the dining room seem larger than they are because the center hall is visually a part of them, thanks to open planning.

The fireplace at the far end of the bow-windowed living room is the focal point of interest.

There are entrances to a lavatory from both the front hall and the laundry. These permit the lavatory to serve both the formal living area and the family service section and is so located that the plumbing is tied directly to that of the kitchen and the laundry.

The kitchen, 17 feet, four inches long, has a dinette that overlooks, through sliding glass doors, a screened porch towards the rear instead of a limited view of a narrow side yard.

The master bedroom has two closets and is entered from the end of the center hall, with the architect showing in the floor plan a place for a door to the screened porch if desired.

This bedroom and the two others are grouped so as to be convenient to a split bathroom in which the fixtures are so arranged that two persons can use the facilities at the same time. The location of the screened porch makes it suitable as a combined outdoor dining area and a place for lounging.

The plans call for a full cellar, which can be entered near the garage. There also is a cellar entrance at the rear of the house to facilitate storage for outdoor furniture and gardening equipment.

Design Z-32 has a pleasant, modified Colonial exterior appearance. Inside, it packs plenty of practical living within modest dimensions.
